1. Justification in joining the activities:

On 12th October 2019, I joined the Computer Graphic and Multimedia Association (CGMA) Interactive Day 2019 as a participant. CGMA Interactive Day is an orientation program held by the Computer Graphic and Multimedia course students on the purpose to improve the interaction among the first year students (participants) with the senior students (committee). The venue of the indoor activities of this program is at Dewan Sri Merbau (L01), KTHO and for the outdoor activity is at Tasik UTM.

2. The Graduate Attributes that are focused on:

- Leadership and Teamworking Skills

In this program, I managed to develop my leadership and teamworking skills while running the activities such as designing group logos and building the straw bridge. Most of the programs required the best team work to achieve or complete the tasks. Not only for the leader of the group, but also the members have to motivate each other and handle the responsibilities that are delegated to us.

- Communication Skills

Communication skill is very important throughout the program. We have to know how to communicate effectively among the group members to complete the tasks smoothly. Sometimes there might be arguments or conflicts among the group members when discussing some ideas. Therefore, we have to try listening to others' opinions.

3. Content of the activities:

The program is held on 12th of October 2019, and starts at 8.00 o'clock in the morning. After the registration session, we had an ice-breaking for the group members to get to know each other better. Other activities that are also carried out in this program include: designing the group logo, slogan and making a straw bridge. After lunch, we played some station games. At around 4 to 5pm, we moved to the next venue for kayaking. Although it was raining at that time, the activity was able to run smoothly as the rain started to stop. After dinner, we had some activities and the program ended with the announcements for the group winners in the closing ceremony.
