Reporting:

A club in UTM called Kelab Kerjaya dan Kaunseling (KKDK) organized an event called "Beyond Destiny" for the UTM students. The event was meant to recruit new members into the club and wanted to show the motives of the club. The event attracted a lot of first and second year students which consist of many different courses. I was also one of the members who participated in the program.

The facilitators in the program are consist of senior year students that had join the club since their first and second year studies in UTM. The program involves 51 participants that are mostly girls. Lots of mini games and puzzles were introduced during the program and I also learned how to set up the campsite as the program was conducted inside the UTM forest. Many survival knowledge was absorbed inside of me as the facilitators taught a lot about the survival tips inside the woods.

Responding:

Throughout the “Beyond Destiny” program, there were many mixed emotions flowing through inside of me. One of them is the feeling of excitement as the program held many activities such as treasure hunt, quiz challenges, puzzle challenges and many more. The excitement continues as our group managed to overcome and won many of those challenging activities. Besides that, I also felt curious as I was very eager to know the answers and solutions to all the quizzed and puzzles provided by the facilitators. The curiosity increased when your group answered the wrong answer. I felt more curious to know the right answer to the puzzles and quizzes.

Besides that, the feeling of surprised was included in the mix of emotions. For example, I was very surprised to know the answers to the quizzes and puzzles. Also, I felt confident when I was doing the activities. The feeling of confidence felt way stronger with the help of my groupmates who were there for me. What I think during that program was that I’m doing well when it comes to thinking outside of the box as I was quite fast on solving the problem. I also think that I’m quite good at communicating and getting involves with other people because I was getting along with my groupmates.

Relating:

Before I entered this program, I could say that I had small experience regarding these kind of activities. There were other programs that I went through that was similar to this program. But, I learned a lot more of knowledge such as setting up a campsite, quick thinking skills and many more after I joined this program. The similarities that I faced was good thinking skills. I learned this from the facilitators and increased the bonding between us. I made so many senior and junior friends. Great friends were made throughout the program especially as we faced through all the hardships together.

What this event was different compared to the previous program that I entered was the experience of camping in the woods. I learned how to light up a fire with the help of the facilitators. Besides that, I learned how to set up a tent and managed to set it up with ease. In contrast, there were many knowledge and skills that I adapted throughout the program. One of them is communication skills. My communication skill was getting smoother as I mastered the art of communicating especially in front of the public audience. Also, adaptability was also inserted inside of me as I adapt to camping inside the woods.

Finally, critical thinking skill was also a skill that I grasped during that program as I was very quick at answering the puzzles and quizzes. Thinking outside of the box was a very hard thing for me to grasp the concept. Thanks to the program, I managed to overcome it.

Reasoning:

One of the important aspects that I learned was having fun and enjoying the moments with my new friends and the instructors. We were all quite shy and awkward among ourselves, but with the help of the facilitators, we managed to get along and overcame the hurdles of being shy. Moreover, I learned about camping in the woods and mastered the skills of surviving inside the woods. For example, I learned how to light up a fire, setting up a tent, survival cooking and many more.

In addition, I learned how to improve my thinking skills. This was proven when me and my groupmates managed to solve so many quizzes and puzzles. Besides that, I also mastered the art of communication as I was communicating well and getting along with most of the people in the program. Based on my personal perspective, I can see that the event is good to increase a person's capability and soft skills.

Additionally, based on the lecturer's perspective, they felt proud with collaboration and connection between the KKDK members and the UTM students. They saw that all of the people who were a part of the program was connecting and talking with each other with so much joy showing on their faces. Soft skills knowledge was well presented from the participants and the lecturers were very satisfied with that.

Reconstructing:

Many points and facts were illustrated during this program. It also showed the communication and cooperation between the KKDK members and the UTM students. Also, the skills of camping in the woods was also showed throughout the program. Adaptability was also the main key ingredient of what I expected from entering this program.

Other than that, I hoped that the next program would include more soft skills that are useful in daily life situations. If there are more soft skills applied, the better we become as a person. I also hope that KKDK would held more programs and events in the future.
