On 14 of October 2020, I attended a session with the deputy vice chancellor virtually because it was during the covid-19 pandemic. The event was held during our orientation days via Facebook live so it can be accessed by all students. It was a brief introduction for us as a new graduate student in UTM.

Next, the deputy vice chancellor greeted us nicely and shared stories with us. Not just that, he also motivates us and reminds us why we are here in UTM. In addition, the session was handled smoothly by the MPP in charge. It's not just a sharing session but students were also allowed to ask questions to the deputy vice chancellor.

All in all, the session was meaningful as we got to know and hear stories about UTM. I remember how bad it feels like to only have orientation virtually instead of physically. The session was great and full of information.
