1.0 Introduction

CGMA Interactive Day 2021 (CID'21) is an annual event hosted by CGMA on 27th November 2021 for new committee members to get to know each other. I one of the committee members in this program as I am also the student of Computer Science (Graphic and Multimedia Software). The program was held online due to the Covid-19 outbreak that had ravaged our country at the time. This initiative allows students of Computer Science (Graphics and Multimedia Software) to gain more knowledge about Computer Graphics.

2.0 Graduate Attributes

Attributes that are related to CID'21 are leadership and teamwork skills, communication skills and thinking skills.

- Leadership and Teamwork skills

Before the program started, we were assigned to the Avengers group, which included some SECV students from each year. In each activity provided during the program, each student should be a representation of each group. To win an activity that has been presented, we must cooperate together.

- Communication skills

I learned how to communicate with existing group member in this program. This is because we need to talk about how we'll keep the activities going on. So that there is no misinformation when joining the activities, such items must be understood and agreed upon.

- Thinking skills

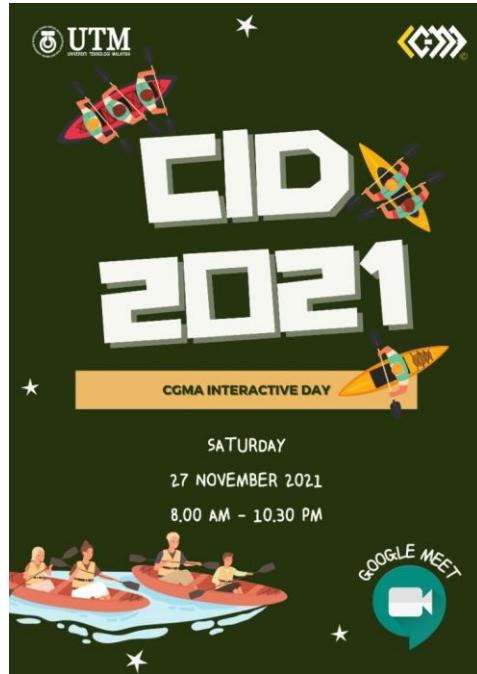

I also learnt some critical thinking skills through this program. This is because I need to be ready to be the group representative to fight with others group in some activities and we need to win the activities provided.

3.0 Role in the Activities

I was one of the Committee which is Grand Treasurer.
