I learned new things from doing the project.

With the topic set to SDG7(Affordable and Clean Energy), I searched for renewable energy and areas that need it. In fact, before that, I only thought It was good that renewable energy was developed very fast and a lot. But wasn't interested in isolated areas that had a lack of energy and technology. I realized that some of the renewable energy technology that came out for the isolated areas is actually couldn't long-lasting. Therefore, through this project preparation process, I could found out that there are quite a lot of areas that had no way to get energy and therefore it turned to be isolated from technology and energy.

In this regard, rather than focusing solely on technology development, it seemed very important to be devoted to introducing and supplying faster technological development to the regions or communities that needed it. If new renewable energy is developed in the future, it is likely that I will not focus only on new renewable energy, but on an isolated area where the energy technology is needed.
