The Alumnus Sharing Purpose Ahmed Abdalla Ramadan JOHOR BAHRU – The purpose of Industrial Talk 3 is to motivate students through an interview with former students who had studied at the UTM university. For example, the student. Tan Yong Keong liked competitions and used to compete in any field in his field at the university to strengthen his skills. He worked for one and half years as Data Science Engineering in Singapore. Qistina worked at TM One company in Kuala Lumpur as a social data analyst. Mohamad zamarul Working in data engineering at Shah Alma Selangor.	Each one of them told their inspiring story of how and when he got the job. They said that through proper practice and mindset, programming can be improved and loved. Lastly on the matter of CGPA asked by a student, all of them agreed that in most job sectors, skills are given more priority than the CGPA. They advised the students to maintain a good CGPA like 3.00 and also to acquire different skills like communication, presentation and also online courses, which can make you more important in the job sector.	rather than their academic result. They had stated that the interviewer will require our experience in our projects and assignments as we lack the working experience. They also state that certificates from various competitions related to our courses is a good plus point for us to get hired. Other than interviewing techniques, the alumnus had given us useful advice for our working life. One of the advice given is that having a good motivation is important for us to have the courage to cope with the stressful working environment. Beside that, one of the alumnus had shared to us that we must learn new skills and information related to our career.	We must also be alert to the new technique and new technology. Reflection:

1. Muhammad Aqila Karindra Daffa - (A19EC3010):

From the talk 3 with UTM alumnus, I got several important information for my future. Such as, how to face my first interview for a job, and many more. There was also a weakness of the talk, it was how the alumnus told us about the information, some of them not told us their experiences well, it means if there was no lecturer or host who asked them about something for example, about how they faced their first interview. If the lecturer did not ask them like that maybe the alumnus will not tell us about that. So, the strength of the talk was the attendance of the lecturer or the host because without the lecturer asking the alumnus with many questions, we will not get any spesific information about the experiences of the alumnus.

they introduced themselves well. they could give us important information with their own experience. one of them has a good ability to show his insights in a good way gradually. Some of the talkers were a little bit nervous and not very confident. others their camera was not really framing them well others some of their words were not clear enough.

have learned in this session to get a job after graduation easily i should have improved myself while my study years . most important about the coder not how many languages he knows but the coding concept. The motivation for me is that a student, specifically a programmer, can find a job while he is studying if he is good enough. The insight is trying to learn and educate myself with several coding concepts. The information is how to really get a good benefit and enough help from our supervisors and seniors that will help us get a job easier.

3. Lim Li Ting - (A20EC5008):

There are some strengths and weaknesses that I had noticed from this talk. For the strengths of the talk is that the presenters were able to present their points with an interesting method. The conductor also did a very good job in helping the audience to ask the presenter various questions. The weakness of the talk is the lack of pictures during the presentation. Lack of pictures will cause the audience to not fully understand what the presenter is presenting. From this session, I had learned the interviewing technique that is important to our future job hunting. I had also learned how to cope with the stressful working life. The insight that I had required is that I must be active in participating in various activities regarding our courses. While the information that I get from this talk is having motivation and passion for what we do will lead us to success.

4. Islam Mohammed Ruzhan - (A20EC4028)

The strength of the talk was that it was very well organized. The moderator handled the program quite well. The speakers were also very qualified and made a good presentation of themselves. They talked about many important points needed in life. The weakness was that sometimes there were net problems. I also noticed that one of the speakers did not attend the meeting.

This session was full of motivation. As they graduated from the same university as ours and got a good job, certainly they are the best motivation to us. Besides, they also told about how they got such jobs. So I think the video was very informative. So

I think after watching this video carefully, if we follow the speakers' advice we can also be a successful alumni of UTM like them.
